Promient among the party of visiting Frenchmen was baron de Estournelles de Constant, the famous advocate of world wide peace. In his speech at the dedication, baron de Constant said that the United States. England and France led the world in the peace movement. He prophesied that all nations would in time realize that money spent for articles of war could be more wisely distributed for educational purposes, and closed his address with a fervid eulogy of Champlain and his life.

Besides Gabriel Hanotaux and baron de Constunt, the French delegation in-cluded Gene Bazin and Etienne Lamy, cluded Gene Barr and Ellenne Lainy, both of the scademy; Gen Lebon Fet-nand Cormon, president of the Academy of Fine Arts; Vidni de la Blanche, mem-ber of the French Institute, represent-ing the University of Paris; the duke of Choiseul and the count of Rachambeau, Dal Pair, managing director of the Choiseul and the count of Rochambeau; Dal Faiz, managing director of the French line; Antoine Girard, Gabriel Louis Jaray, member of the council of state and secretary of the Franco-American committee; Roger Goguel, secretary of the delegation, and count Charles of Chambraun, representing the French premier.

In the party were also the countess of Rochambeau, Mile, Valentine Girard and Mile, Madeline Cormon.

Warm in Praise of Champinin, All of the speakers, both French and American, were warm in their praise of Champiain and spoke of the present ceremony as an exemplification of the mutual feeling of trust and friendship that had been maintained between France and America for the last 100 years.
